

REEDNet (Rural Employer Engagement Development Network) is a network of England's land-based colleges led by the sector's two leading university colleges, with unrivalled reputations for their industrial training, education, research and consultancy in the sector.

The Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, specialises in agricultural and land management, the food industry, animal science, land-based engineering, business and leadership and the environmental sector.

For more information and a free consultation about your specific training needs please contact a member of our Business Development Team:

Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, Gloucestershire GL7 6JS

Tel: 01285 652531

E-mail: training@rac.ac.uk

Website: www.rac.ac.uk

WORK-BASED ACCREDITED TRAINING

Working with colleges and training providers

The Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, provides accreditation to support your higher level training and progression.

Designed to help you access Higher Education and enhance your training

Working collaboratively with colleges and training providers the Royal Agricultural College Business Development Team will help you develop and provide demand-led and employer-client focused accredited Continuing Professional Development (CPD) and training provision and their employer can benefit.

Training courses will include assessment at Higher Education quality assured standards which could lead to higher level awards and qualifications from the Royal Agricultural College.

Colleges and Training Providers involved will benefit from:

- Access to flexible award structures which can accommodate skills training, CPD activity and on-the-job experience
- Higher level training for your employers
- Support and guidance in the design of programmes for academic validation
- Added value to training with accredited assessment

Your dedicated Business Development Team will discuss and offer advice on:

- How to add value to your existing training programme through quality assurance offered by accredited training
- Potential Higher Education funding schemes available

Working with colleges and training providers to develop robust and bespoke work-based staff development programmes.

Providing a recognised quality assurance and enhancement framework which ensures training outcomes are variable, relevant and fully accredited.

work-based accredited training