

REEDNet (Rural Employer Engagement Development Network) is a network of England's land-based colleges led by the sector's two leading university colleges, with unrivalled reputations for their industrial training, education, research and consultancy in the sector.

The Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, specialises in agricultural and land management, the food industry, animal science, land-based engineering, business and leadership and the environmental sector.

For more information and a free consultation about your specific business needs please contact a member of our Business Development Team:

Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, Gloucestershire GL7 6JS

Tel: 01285 652531

E-mail: training@rac.ac.uk

Website: www.rac.ac.uk

WORK-BASED ACCREDITED TRAINING

Working with employers

The Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, provides bespoke training and development solutions for businesses and their employees.

Employers involved will benefit from:

- Enhanced business performance
- Commercial competitiveness
- Retention and recruitment of quality, highly motivated staff
- Personal development and growth for employees
- Cost effective training solutions
- Flexible, accessible learning irrespective of location
- Accredited training programmes leading to degree level credits

Your dedicated Business Development Team will discuss and offer advice on:

- Your existing training programmes and plans
- Matching your business goals with the right training provision and delivery to suit your business
- Potential Higher Education funding schemes available to support the development and training of you and your staff
- Identifiable skills gaps

Designed for your needs

Training courses can be designed to meet your individual business's training needs and support you in providing excellent development routes for the key people in your business. Focusing on increasing personal and business performance where both the learner and their employer can benefit.

Training courses will include assessment at Higher Education quality assured standards through the Royal Agricultural College accreditation system.

Excellent development routes for key staff
Increase personal and business performance
Recognition of your investment
A flexible training solution

work-based accredited training